

I am against the use of cell phones on airborne aircraft for several reasons. The nuisance of having any number of conversations in a confined space could lead to unnecessary conflict between passengers, which could become a safety issue. People talking on phones will interfere with the flight crew giving important safety announcements. Most importantly, terrorists could use cell phones in flight to coordinate terrorist acts. I see absolutely no benefit to allowing the use of cell phones aboard aircraft other than the additional profits that will be realized by cellular carriers.
